| Migraine is a disabling medical condition characterized by attacks of headache and neurological symptoms. The attacks can typically be treated effectively if treated early. Many children and adolescents can identify when a migraine is starting and may request to be allowed to take their medication(s) as prescribed, even if they do not yet appear to be in pain. If they are made to wait until the headache is severe, the medication(s) may not work well, thus resulting in increased school absence and decreased school performance. |
| There are several symptoms of migraine including head pain, nausea, vomiting, visual changes, dizziness, abdominal upset, and a host of other neurological symptoms such as tingling of the face, arms, or legs. Treatments for migraine include preventive medication, acute medication, and coping techniques such as relaxation and breathing techniques.                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| When [Insert name] begins to feel the onset of a migraine, acute medication must be taken VERY QUICKLY to prevent worsening and a prolonged headache. It would be helpful if there is somewhere quiet and dark [Insert name] can go to rest for 30 – 60 minutes after taking medication. With successful early treatment of a migraine attack, the goal is to return to school activities after this time.                                                                                                                                          |
